

Natural Learning Initiative
NEWSLETTER
May 2022

Creating environments for healthy human development and a healthy biosphere for generations to come.

Check out the NLI Website!

Save the date

Global launch of the Lancet Global Health Series on Urban design, transport, and health

Thurs, May 12, 2022, at 2:00 pm BST / 9:00 am EST

THE LANCET
Global Health The best science for better lives

Deepti Adlakha Published in Lancet Global Health Series

NLI Director, Dr. Deepti Adlakha's latest research work was published as The Lancet Global Health Series on Urban Design, Transport and Health. Dr. Adlakha is an Executive Member of the Global Healthy and Sustainable City-Indicators Collaboration, an international network of over 80 collaborators with expertise in public health, urban and transport planning, urban design, architecture, geospatial science, behavioral science, statistics, epidemiology, and public policy. This Series assesses city planning policies and the urban design and transport features of 25 cities across each continent, with the aim to inform policy directions for more healthy, sustainable cities worldwide... read more

Early Childhood Outdoor Learning Environments Certificate Summer Course

Registration is open for the upcoming Summer section, June 6 – August 26, 2022. The self-paced online course consists of 8 modules and is worth 2.4 CEUs... read more

Healthy Kids: No Batteries Required

In a journey of discovery spanning six decades, Robin Moore has explored the connections between human development and the natural world. His ideas may hold the key to raising healthy children in the digital age...read more

April 7, 2022 | David Hunt

Nilda Cosco Honored with Multiple Awards

Dr. Nilda Cosco, Research Associate Professor, Landscape Architecture and Environmental Planning, Director of Programs, Natural Learning Initiative, College of Design, receives multiple honors as an Extension and Engagement Scholar, NC State University... read more

Thank you for continuing to support our mission!

CLICK TO DONATE to NLI's Development Fund.

<https://naturalearning.org>
naturalearning@ncsu.edu
(919) 515-8345

